Each year hundreds of new species, varieties and cultivars of plants are introduced into commerce. These choice plants offer superior flowers, foliage, fruit, improved vigor and cultural adaptability. At the same time, there are many underutilized and exceptional mainstays that should be used more in the landscape. This presentation puts into focus some of the newer and most promising selections of trees and shrubs available on the market as well as some old favorites that offer exceptional garden merit. These plants no doubt offer great versatility to the professional horticulturist and designer as well as the home gardener with a true appreciation for the best and brightest plants available. With so much emphasis these days on climate change, the need to support pollinators and birds, deer pressure and the demand for exceptional plant qualities and performance, plant selection and breeding has become more important than ever before. Buckle up and enjoy the journey!
